FEATHERLITE INDUSTRIES AND THE ISLAND SKY CORPORATION ANNOUNCE EMERGENCY WATER PRODUCT JOINT VENTURE PROJECT

Island Sky® Australia Limited (ASX Code: ISK), a manufacturer and distributor of innovative atmospheric water generators, and Featherlite Industries, OEM manufacturer of industrial containers for power generators, boilers, water treatment, and custom projects, announced today that they have signed a JV agreement to build the world's first, self sustaining emergency water containers.

The product, called Skywater® ESU-20, is a custom designed Featherlite ISO container built to house a mobile water generation plant capable of supplying over 900 gallons of drinking water daily from atmospheric humidity. The Skywater® ESU-20 features 3 Skywater®300 units, a 1,275 gallon water storage tank, and a built-in 30kw electric diesel generator.

"The product is a go-anywhere, ready for use, self-contained water source. You can literally roll this unit to any natural disaster site or remote location where water is needed and make safe drinking water," said Island Sky President & CEO, Richard Groden.

Newsweek's June 6th edition reports, "In a world of climate change, freak storms are the new normal." With the US seeing record-breaking weather patterns and natural disasters, the need for emergency water is ever increasing. The Skywater® ESU-20 is a fully mobile unit which can generate its own electricity or can be hooked up to any existing power source if available.

"The engineers have come up with a volume package that scales multiple units inside our customized ISO 20ft shipping container. With this principal, and Island Sky technology, we can produce thousands of gallons of water per day and be ready to take on water shortage problems quickly and effectively," said Featherlite President & CEO, Brent Crego.
